Service statement of philosophy

To guide the child towards the good, the beautiful, the affirming and ordered in life, enabling the child to live with joy, security and wellbeing.

Our learning environment will provide a truly holistic education, nourishing the healthy development of the foundational senses as outlined by Steiner: the sense of life, balance, self-movement and touch. Every activity will impact the child on all levels (emotional, social, physical, cognitive and spiritual) and we plan these with this in mind.

In the first seven years, the emphasis is on the will; the physical actions of the child. This enables the child to develop confident self-identity, sense of agency, skill and autonomy. As these grow the child is able to interact with others with care, empathy and respect.

Children will develop a sense of security through daily, weekly, seasonal and yearly rhythms that underlie and support life. The children are supported and reassured in their endeavours and enabled to see continuity and trust in the unfolding of life.

The children will be surrounded with skilful, purposeful, real-life activities for imitation, eg. baking, sweeping, gardening, which will support development of fine and gross motor skills and sense of interdependence so necessary in the world. Their memory is strengthened by the repetition of these authentic tasks.

We believe a close connection with and reverence for nature, as well as gratitude for all that it provides in daily life is vital for wellbeing and foster this through seasonal activities, festivals and daily living practices of gratefulness.

The teachers teach predominantly by example rather than instruction. Warm, trusting relationships with adults are pivotal to the desire to imitate, which is the main way children learn at this age. Teachers are deeply aware of cultivating and living out attitudes conducive to wellbeing, learning and being. A teacher's presence and deeds and expression of wonder, curiosity, security, perseverance and application to daily tasks directly impacts the very same in children.

Good relationships and connection with families and a strong sense of school community are vitally important, and we foster these intentionally.

We promote language development by bringing rich inner pictures to the children through fairy-tale and nature stories, through excellent modelling of language, through song, verse and rhyme combined with movement and through establishing an environment in which children can freely use language in its many different forms. Self-directed play requires rich oral communication. Language experiences are meaningful and connected to the world.

It is essential to provide much time for self-initiated, child-directed creative play. Self-directed creative play is facilitated because it is the way children work themselves into life in a health giving way. The children work with all that they have observed and are learning in everyday life. This gives them the opportunity to process and make sense of what they see and make these experiences their own in a unique, creative and potent way. Play is the key to children's learning and healthy development. Teachers act as sensitive guides during play, value what comes from the child and help create a culture of play. The pre-school/transition environment is aesthetic without over stimulation to support the child in their play and immersion in life.

We believe sound wellbeing results from the satisfaction of a child's basic developmental needs, for tenderness and affection, security and clarity, belonging, competency, physical wellness and for meaning in life. We work with the children's innate openness, curiosity and trust towards their world. Through our approaches to meet children, we help them grow strong and resilient to meet life's challenges in later years.

We strive for continuous improvement in our teaching practice. There is a commitment to staff improvement through on-going professional development internally and externally.

Quality Area 1: Educational program and practice

This quality area of the National Quality Standard focuses on ensuring that the educational program and practice is stimulating and engaging and enhances children's learning and development. In school age care services, the program nurtures the development of life skills and complements children's experiences, opportunities and relationships at school, at home and in the community

Quality Area 1: Summary of Strengths

Standard 1.1	An approved learning framework informs the development of a curriculum that enhances each child's learning and development.
Element 1.1.1	Curriculum decision making contributes to each child's learning and development outcomes in relation to their identity, connection with community, wellbeing, and confidence as learners and effectiveness as communicators.
	Our planning and programs are underpinned by the Steiner Education curriculum and our Statement of Philosophy, linked with the ELYF. Staff consultate and plan collaboratively focusing on the child's developmental stage and the EYLF outcomes. There is ongoing development of resource folders for the two programs.
Element 1.1.2	Each child's current knowledge, ideas, culture, abilities and interests are the foundation of the program.
	Our program allows for periods of self-directed, teacher supported play, which values and supports each child's current knowledge, ideas, culture, abilities and interest. Every day children have opportunities to integrate these aspects within the Pre-School curriculum. The enrolment process, family interviews and ongoing child observations contribute to the program.
Element 1.1.3	The program, including routines, is organised in ways that maximise opportunities for each child's learning.
	Our programing and planning supports the child's learning through a strong rhythm. The rhythms are daily, weekly and seasonal. Rhythm builds security and allows children to learn at their own pace.
Element 1.1.4	The documentation about each child's program and progress is available to families.
	The Pre-School uses a variety of methods to inform families of a child's program and progress and receive family feedback. These include the Family Handbook, family information evenings and family/teacher conversations regarding the child. Child participation is documented in their folders and shared with families at the termly meetings. Noticeboards and newsletters provide insight into the program.

	Element 1.1.5	Every child is supported to participate in the program. The service uses prior knowledge obtained through the enrolment process as well as ongoing assessment, e.g. daily observations and family/teacher conversations, to enable each child to participate in the program. The Learning Support Team also assists when required. In family meetings and conversations with educators, the Learning Support Team works with families and children to provide strategies e.g. Student Support Plans (SSP) and possible Adjustment Plans, to enable full participation in the program. Our practice of active observation throughout the day enables us to make informed decisions which support children to engage in the program. We are currently reviewing our Interactions with Children/Behaviour policy.
	Element 1.1.6	Each child's agency is promoted, enabling them to make choices and decisions and influence events and their world. Our program develops each child's agency through self-directed play, craft activities and participation in 'skilful, purposeful real-life activities' e.g. baking, setting the table etc. Children can also decide to participate in teacher –directed activity or choose to watch the activity in the setting. Educators display encouragement and enthusiasm for children's attempts to gain new skills Children's feelings and interactions in relation to their peers are supported in a caring manner.
Standard 1.2	Educators and co-ordinators are focused, active and reflective in designing and delivering the program for each child.
	Element 1.2.1	Each child's learning and development is assessed as part of an ongoing cycle of planning, documenting and evaluation. Each child's learning and development is continually assessed and documented through various methods, such as individual observations, photos, professional reflective diary, and collegial reflective practice, both formal and informal. This constantly gathered information contributes to future planning.
	Element 1.2.2	Educators respond to children's ideas and play and use intentional teaching to scaffold and extend each child's learning. Teachers support self-directed play through careful modelling. Considered and timely intervention encourages an environment that supports and extends children's learning. Educators extend play and illicit ideas through offering new objects or a question/provocation "I wonder what would happen if....?" Meal time conversations also provide a listening and sharing of ideas space for children.
	Element 1.2.3	Critical reflection on children's learning and development, both as individuals and in groups, is regularly used to implement the program. Individual and group reflections are documented and evaluated each day through daily diary entries, child/ren observations and family discussion. Programs are modified and/or prepared with these reflections through collegial discussion.

Quality Area 7: Leadership and service management

This quality area of the National Quality Standard focuses on effective leadership and management of the service that contributes to quality environments for children's learning and development. Well-documented policies and procedures, well-maintained records, shared values, clear direction and reflective practices enable the service to function as a learning community. An ongoing cycle of planning and review, including engagement with families, creates the climate for continuous improvement.

Quality Area 7: Standards and elements

Standard 7.1	Effective leadership promotes a positive organisational culture and builds a professional learning community.
	Element 7.1.1 Appropriate governance arrangements are in place to manage the service. Leadership is shared between the Principal and the EC Coordinator. EC staff are encouraged to contribute to the development of the pre-school through weekly faculty meetings and team meetings where open discussion and enquiry are fostered. Families at the service are invited at enrolment to become members of The Alice Springs Steiner Association (TASSA), who are the owners of the school. This membership allows for current and past families, as well as other interested parties to participate in nominating and taking up a position on the board, or through the election process vote for their preferred governing body candidates. The TASSA Board operates under a constitution and provides governance, whilst the principal provides the management and leadership, interfacing between governing body and staff. The Board governs through monthly minuted meetings, annual AGM, participation in strategic management planning and relevant Task Groups. Information is provided to families with regard to governance and management through the enrolment procedure, Family Handbook and notices. Families are also encouraged to participate in a whole school survey conducted annually to inform planning and practice at the service.
	Element 7.1.2 The induction of educators, co-ordinators and staff members is comprehensive. All staff receive a clear job description and contract at the outset of their employment. The induction process for educators includes receipt of a handbook to guide their understanding of the school's philosophy, relevant programming & planning materials to further assist this process. Staff introductions and introductory processes for meeting children and families is carried out.

	Element 7.1.3	Every effort is made to promote continuity of educators and co-ordinators at the service. Efforts are made to provide continuity of staff, however at times this is a challenge in Alice Springs. Recent staff turnover has been a result of changes in personal life or the necessity to upgrade qualifications.
	Element 7.1.4	Provision is made to ensure a suitably qualified and experienced educator or co-ordinator leads the development of the curriculum and ensures the establishment of clear goals and expectations for teaching and learning. A new position has been created for an educational leader with a Steiner background. The service is a member of the Steiner Education Association which provides support, resources and clear goals for the development of curriculum. School supported professional development is ongoing throughout the year. Staff are supported in making connections with professionals in other Steiner early childhood services through attendance at National/International conferences and workshops. Staff are encouraged to participate in the local early childhood network meetings and professional development.
	Element 7.1.5	Adults working with children and those engaged in management of the service or residing on the premises are fit and proper. All educators have a National Police Check and possess a WWC (Ochre) Card (NT). These requirements are indicated and acquired at time of recruitment. All information is contained on an employee's file and such clearances are accessible to families on request. All staff participate in an annual Child Protection in-service course. Reporting is mandatory. First aid certificates are also required.
Standard 7.2		There is a commitment to continuous improvement.
	Element 7.2.1	A statement of philosophy is developed and guides all aspects of the service's operations. Educators are guided by the service's Statement of Philosophy throughout all aspects of the pre-school. The Statement of Philosophy is communicated to families through the enrolment process, handbook, website and noticeboards. Review of the Statement of Philosophy is carried out periodically.
	Element 7.2.2	The performance of educators, co-ordinators and staff members is evaluated and individual development plans are in place to support performance improvement. On-going reflective practice is an expectation of all staff members, this includes self evaluation. A formal evaluation is conducted in the first four months of employment. Formal evaluation and review by supervisors is performed in the first, third and fifth years of employment. Further mentoring and observations of educators are arranged when required.

	Element 7.2.3	An effective self-assessment and quality improvement process is in place. Reflective practice and assessments within the educational program, family survey and conversations and collaborative staff meetings all deliver continuous assessment and improvement to the service.
